The Bible & Daily Living

Risk, and the courage to face life's challenges

By WILLIAM L. TRIMYER
COURAGE TO FACE LIFE'S CHALLENGES
Lesson for June 19, 1983
Bible Study Passages: Numbers 13:1-33; 14:1-24; Joshua 14:8-12

Introduction

About the only people who like the word risk are those in the insurance business. The insurance industry is founded upon the notion of risk. The insurance business prospers because it believes that enough people will live long enough to pay off their policies.

The word risk tends to raise our anxiety and feelings of insecurity. In these unstable economic times the idea of risk is even more anxiety producing. We don't like to risk for fear we will lose or fail.

But anyway you look at it life is a risk. When we stroll down the aisle to the marriage altar we are risking that our feelings and needs will be cared for by the person we choose to marry. Rearing children and raising gardens is a risk. Planning for our future is done in spite of the risk that we may not live long enough to see our plans come to fruition.

Unless we take risks we may never accomplish certain goals or enjoy certain experiences. Some people never see the beauty of our country because they dare not risk flying or venturing forth to far from home. This week's lesson looks at Caleb and how he willingly risked himself in order to serve God and his Hebrew people.

Courageous Caleb [Num. 13:1-33; 14:1-10]

Caleb was chosen to head a delegation of spies from the twelve tribes to survey the new land of Canaan. They were to enter Kadesh-barnea and return with a full report. Moses was careful not to lead the mass of Hebrews into a land of unknown.

When the spies entered Canaan they found as promised "a land flowing with milk and honey". But they were not prepared to find a land of inhabitants who appeared too great to defeat in battle. Caleb tried to instill courage into Moses and the people by saying the land could be taken. The other spies, however, offered their pessimistic view that this new land was inhabited by giants who suppress the small and powerless.

It might be said of our country that we devour our inhabitants, that is big business and power hungry giants often take advantage of the poor and the powerless. Some politicians do not always work for the good of the people. Some institutions and professionals are more interested in capital gains than the needs of people.

God's Promise To The People [Num. 14:11-24]

Caleb sought to minimize the fears of the people by reminding them of God's earlier promises to guide and protect them in their effort to claim the land. When Israel heard the report of the spies they rebelled against the idea of facing the giants of Canaan. What could have been accomplished in perhaps months took forty years of wandering in the Sinac Desert.

Israel's rebellion forced God to call their hand and promise to disinherit these people for their failure to trust his promises. Fortunately for the people, Moses intervened on behalf of the people for God to change his mind. Although God did not abandon the people of Isreal he at least denied them early entrance into the Promised Land.

Caleb's Celebration of God's Promise [Jesh. 14:6-15]

Caleb was a ripe old age of eighty five when he and his family settled into Canaan. His faithfulness and loyalty to God had carried him far down the road of life. Caleb firmly believed that God had kept his word and maintained his abiding interest in his loyal people.

Caleb demonstrates for us how an abiding trust in God's goodness will eventually triumph over life's foes. Caleb clung tenaciously to the promise of God that he would inherit the new land. There is something to be said for consistency and Caleb proved his stick-to-it-iveness by remaining as God's servant through the thick and the thin.

Letters to the Editor

The Game Commission

Editor:

The Department of Game and Inland Fisheries is an exceptional state agency because it is not operated on budgeted allocations from the states General Revenue Fund. It is almost entirely funded from moneys received from hunting and fishing license sales as well as boat registrations which are placed in an account and used by the Virginia Game Commission as needed. Other state agencies operate on funds received from the General Revenue Fund.

The Governor has recently ordered an across the board 6 percent reduction of the budgets of all state agencies in order to cut deficits and trim the state budget. This action by Governor Robb has frozen approximately 4 million dollars in the Commission's account. The interest from the Game Commission account is confiscated by the state as an alternative source of income and is placed in the General Revenue Fund.

The Game Commission, through sound management and development programs, has insured an abundance of wildlife. Freezing the Commission's account and skimming the interest can only lead to the reduction and/or elimination of many excellent programs currently in progress and will decrease their effectiveness in game law enforcement by restricting hiring and traveling practices.

A great number of outdoor enthusiasts like myself are upset by this unfair, unilateral action taken by our governor toward the Game Commission.

I urge all conscientious sportspersons to write Governor Robb requesting that he restore to the Virginia Game and Inland Fisheries those funds which are rightfully theirs. This would not be asking the governor to give us anything that is not already rightfully ours. This is necessary in order to maintain and preserve the abundant wildlife in our bountiful state.

Sincerely
Robert E. Taylor

Board's position on dump

Letter to the Editor

The Appomattox County Board of Supervisors is of the opinion that it is generally well understood that Appomattox County has been identified as one of 18 potential host communities for a low level nuclear waste disposal site. However, the Board also believes that due to the complexity of the issue and the fast pace of developments in this area that very important details are not generally well understood.

Your Board has been actively involved in the matter of low level nuclear waste disposal and the following paragraphs are intended to summarize Board activities and to give a very general overview of the interactions with the Solid Waste Commission and the Governor's office. Although previous activions taken by the Appomattox County Board of Supervisors have been publicized, the following two measures are considered very important:

February 12, 1982 - Passed an ordinance entitled "Nuclear Waste and Dangerous Chemicals Disposal Ordinance of Appomattox County"

April 8, 1983 - Resolved "that Governor Robb be requested to order a study of alternative methods of disposal of low level radioactive waste prior to a final decision to dispose of said waste underground in landfills."

Furthermore, the Appomattox County Board of Supervisors has taken the initiative to insure that the low level nuclear waste issue is more fully understood by the county citizens and that its possible implications for Appomattox County are more fully assessed.

Toward this end the Board has appointed a committee to review both the positive and the negative features of this complex issue and to keep the Board informed of its findings, to include recommendations for possible further Board actions.

The Virginia Solid Waste Commission has made two recommendations to Governor Robb:

1. That the Commonwealth initiate a study of alternative methods to shallow land burial for disposal of low level radioactive waste. This study would include an evaluation of interim above ground storage as well as other disposal methods.

2. That the Health Department's siting contractor should withhold its recommendations for final six candidate sites for a period of 60 days, until the Solid Waste Commission has an opportunity to make a final recommendation to the Governor on this matter.

It appears at this point that Governor Robb is receptive to the above recommendations of the Solid Waste Commission. Furthermore, upon a recommendation from the Appomattox County Study Committee, the Appomattox Board of Supervisors has taken the position that the study of alternative methods to shallow land disposal be completed before proceeding with the shallow land disposal screening studies.

The Appomattox County Board of Supervisors hopes tha thte foregoing summary of events will be beneficial to the citizens of the County, and that by being well informed that our county can better deal with the very complex subject of low level nuclear waste in the months to come.

Sincerely,
APPOMATTOX COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS
